

Academic Support Resources for Students empowers students to achieve their potential as academic confident and independent learners by providing opportunities to reinforce and apply classroom learning and to assess and improve their study strategies

Essential Academic Strategies

This seminar will help students develop effective strategies to manage their busy schedule, prepare for exams, take breaks, and enhance their productivity. The class meets once a week and runs for a different time in the semester.

Presentation Skills

This seminar will help students develop effective strategies for presenting in CWRU classes. The course will also help students enhance their spoken English skills and vocabulary for oral presentations.

Navigating Reading Skills

This seminar will help students develop effective strategies for academic reading, vocabulary, and general fluency in English. The course will also help students improve their general academic skills.

CWRU students can meet with a staff member in Academic Support Resource for a private confidential appointment about reading, note taking, preparation, time management, spoken English, and other academic strategies. An appointment for academic jobs will help to be employed and to continue academic practice and assist in modifying their academic goals.

Academic Support Resource offers a variety of programs for classroom departments and organizations. Topics for programs include but are not limited to time management, learning, and e-learning strategies. To request a program, email academic@resource.cwru.edu

The Academic and Learning Skills Center is an online tool to help students develop their skills and preferences in areas such as time management, reading, and note taking and personal well-being.

Academic Support Resource publishes one page tips for academic success. Each one has a different topic such as finding a learning strategy, productivity, note taking, how to avoid procrastination, and much more.
